HONGKONG, MARCH SIST, 1871.

Tire unfortunate man Nicks, it appears now settled, is to be the means of re-establishing the eternal harmony of things when magisterial duties are placed in inexperienced hands. We recently set forth the grounds upon which the decision of the Junior Police Magistrate appeared altogether unwarranted: and as it seems that the Executive are not prepared to do anything in the matter, it is to be presumed that NICKS is to be the vile body on which Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL's the surroundings are small, but they will experiment of placing comparatively young men upon the Bench is to be illustrated. Experience both of the Law and of life are always looked upon as essentials in the Magisterial character; and where both canno be obtained, the latter is in all places re garded as a sine quo non. It is no disparagement to the Junior Magistrate to say that he has neither of these qualifications. The solution of the question seems an easy. one, and indeed it is frequently hit upon in he course of conversational discussion, though it is not always regarded as final. Hongkong, a British Colony, is twenty-seven miles in circumference, and to compress all the apparatus of a Colony into twenty-seven miles of circumference you must of necessity make each component part of the apparatus extremely small. But while you do this, you retain the large names, and forgetting in the biguess of the terms the littleness of things you imagine that these little things are great. Gulliver, among the Lilliputians, was considered in course of time a giant, though he was in fact only a man of ordinary size. In like manner men who are constantly surrounded by Lilliputian copies of the things of ordinary size which they have heard called by the same names, will not see that imagine they are themselves great, taking the surroundings to be of the ordinary

Times of 8th February :-Sir.—The decision which lies before France during the next few days is probable the most important, as it is unquestionably the most critical, to which she has been consciously called during the long course of her checkered history. A National Assembly created to decide issues so vast can hardly fail to resolve itself into a Constituent Assembly. Upon the form of Government now to be extemporized will depend her own future, and the future of Western mivilization-of all civilization-will in on small degree be influenced by it. This is a far more serious crisis than the capitulation of Sodan or the surrender of Paris. It is one, therefore, upon which Englishmen may legitimately try to frame and to express a judgement for their own sakes, without lapsing into the impropriety of offering connect to France; tion was introduced into the House of Lords which is, indeed, not more likely than thermany last night, and read a second time. to head our indement upon the matter. What I wish to commend to the reader's notice is that we shall form no right citing impressions of the moment) we ascribe its seriousness to the war. What makes the crisis fearful and well-nigh hopeless is preevil is chronic in France; it has arisen, not from stress of foreign invasion, but causes internal to the country. Since :1848 there has, in truth, been no one day upon which the future of France was a thing open to rational conjecfuture for her at all except a few fanatics for Imperialism on Red Republicanism as such,men respectively bribed into faith or theorized into folly. Thus France has had a 23 years of niter this the delug ." A whole generation has grown up under the demoralizing pressure of this atmosphere of imminent anarchy. It is hardly possible to overrate the poistuone effects of such an atmosphere; it is impossible to sum them up. Even upon England it has exercised a very scrious and a very curious influence. Beside the speculative tendency thus imparted (markedly five or six years ago) mistake the surreptitions vigour which has been hence lent to the rivid superstitions of Comtism and Carlylian which have raged so widely among young mon and literary menthe first paralyzing the intellect, the other the

To calm observes, the most fatal result of Napoleonic Imperialism has throughout been this atmosphere of imminent anarchy; this absolute scapticism as to what is to come next. We hear much now of the frivolity, the immorality, the corruption of Imperialism But a very large chars of these evils must, in causes long operative in France-to the low! am bition created by the First Empire to the letid dregs of the philosophy of the first Revolation, to Communism, with its godless tone of sentiment. And of these causes have not some motoriously found as strenuous partising among Republicana as among Imperialists ! The bad taste of the Court, the venality of officials, the demi-monds so affectionately caressed by English gossip, bad as they were, have probably played but a comparatively small part in the ruin of France, compared with that in evitable epicuroanism on one side, that pent-up fanaticism on the other, which a life without a future engenders now, as surely as it did during "Positivism." is but the scientific expression formula into which modern science translates the famous saying which characterizes the era

Why, above all lespite all the noknowledged evils of the Imperial Government, its slavery, and its corru ion, has thut Government been accepted for some 18 years by the vast majority of French men, and for 18 years conferred such advantages upon them, that even now competent witnesses question whether a genuine vote o the population might not restore the family, not the man?

It is hardly possibly at the moment for u ven to contemplate such an issue with must ask how these things have come to pues before we can form a rational prevision of the future of France. But we must put aside some political preference, some prejudices of old and f recent origin, if we would truly interpret the past with the kope of penetrating the future. We publish to-day a letter from a Correscondent who has just arrived in Paris, and who gives as information from that city to Sunday last, the 5th inst. Our Correspondent left London on Wednesday evening, the let inst ; reached Dieppe at 7 o'clock the next morning: and there found at first his further progress checked. He succeeded, however, in obtaining permission to travel by a special train just starting, and arrived at Amiens at half-past two in the afternoon. He then proceeded by train to Chantilly and Gonesse, but had to pass the night in a railway carriage at the latter place, as it was impossible to go any further. Next day our Correspondent set out on foot for Paris, twelve miles distant, and reached that city at five o'clock in the afternoon, having taken two days, less three hours, to perform the journey from London. On Saturday, the 4th, in the early morning. some provisions came into Paris, and so great was the crowd of purchasers at the markets: that the authorities, becoming anxious, called out the National Guards by beat of drum to preserve order. Our Special Correspondent in Paris says the feeling there is very strong against M. Gambetta among the molerate Republicans. The Government was excited and considered itself insulted by his proclamation usulted or not." Not only had M. Gambetta's decrees been annulled, but he himself had been deprived of his authority as a M nister. The people of Paris were exasponited at his arrogames and incapacity; and as late as the 5th inst, they knew nothing of the fats that had befallen Bourbaki's army. -M. Gambetta has issued a circular to the Prefects and sub-Prefects announcing that he has resigned in consequence of the decree of the Paris Government annulling his decree, by which certain classes of electors were dismalified as candidates. The B rdcanz authorities have prohibited a political meeting which was to have been held in the theatre. A terrible railway accident has occurred in France through the explosion of a waygon aden with powder casks. About '60 persons were killed and 100 wounded. It is now 205, days since the weekly health eturns from Berlin, and 140 days since those from Paris, were discontinued on account of the war. Weekly returns are now received by the Registrar-General from Vienna. Brussels.

FROM CHARING-OROSS TO BRINDIN (To the Edvor of the Times.) Sir. - I am un old traveller, and can generally accomplish as a traveller all that most mon onn. but I never had so anxious a journey us that of hat week from London to Brindial with the India and China mais to catch the outgoing: Peninsular and Oriental steamer. I left Charing-cross on Friday evening at: 8.45 to reach Brindiei the following Tuesday morning the Peninsular and Oriental Company shandbook says) at 2 a.m. to forward to the East. An advertisement in the Continental Brad-But not to run any risk I made special inquiry:

the advertisement, informed my, . The mails and passengers leaving London every Friday evening, from Charing-cross at 8.45 are quite safe to catch the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer leaving Brindisi on the following On this assurance I acted, but, to say nothing of the real hardships of the journey. I found that at Cologne and at Munich, and possibly also at Padua, there was the greatest risk of the malls being sent on and the passengers left." behind. There is no connexion whatever between the departure from Charing cross and the arrival at Brindisi - a distance of 1,800 miles; and but for the most courteous belp of the mail agent I should in all probability bave been left behind at Munich and my luggage left behind at Cologne. All this danger to losing the steamship at Brindisi and failing to secure the intended passage might be easily avoided. Let a through carriage, labelled 'For Brindist," for passengers. as the post-office van is labelled for the mails. be put on at Ostend and run through to Brindisi. Let the van and the oarriage go togother. Without some such an arrangement the assurance I received should not be given to inquiring passengers. Resides, let me nutice in reference to the advertisement in the Confinental Bradshaw, that the connexion between the trains with sessons apparently for refreshment at various stations is simply a delusion. With out a banket of pre- ions a traveller stands uo bad change of starvayon; and, as to the price

Yours, &c.,

IMPERIAL QUARTO. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, by the Rev. W. LOBSOREID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

TOR scope and printical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelied to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-CHIPCHANDLERS, SAILMAKERS, graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond n the size of body, thereby effecting a vest oconomy of space, achieving a clearness, not previously attained, and dispensing with those rest margins and vacant apaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a re-ference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chi-Oct. 19 nese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans ter ing in China and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of thom are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occusionally. It comprises upwards of two thousand large

The Money-Grab. (Porcupine.). Let us introduce to our readers the aristo. cracy of the money-grub, who do business in simple addition after the following fushion: profilably and, in a low sense, creditably. The specimen we take as an example is one of the many, and is generally found in large cities. Then I see that out of this period of four years, Humbler representatives of this well-to-do type there being 1,461 days on any one of which it is find their reward in smaller boroughs and villages. As a rule, they all succeed; and, just in there is only one day by which he could win, proportion as they thrive, misery and penury while I should have all the rest on my saile, and stalk abound the rest on my saile, and stalk abroad. In large towns they erect magnificent structures, flaring with light to attract the stilly moths, and radiant with mirrors very sure; and it is the same principle as that on wherein the dolts may view themselves. They are of the Pharisaical persuasion, and figure extensively about the street corners. In fairness, we concede that a warm heart and an open hand are the distinguishing characteristics of certain percentage of chances on their own this genus. Distress never appeals to it in vain.
